

BRIDGE JAM TO END IN OCTOBER

Then Fourth Avenue Subway
Will Stop Crush, Says
McCall.

42D STREET MUST WAIT

Lines to Relieve the Grand Central Jam May Take Four Years.

CONTRACTS TO BE TESTED

Shearn Says He Will Go to the Highest Court to Annul Them.

Now that the Public Service Commission has the subway contracts out of the way, it began to figure yesterday on how soon New Yorkers can be relieved of traffic congestion.

"The bridge crush—when do you think that will be relieved?" Chairman McCall of the commission was asked.

"Eight months," he said.

"And Forty-second street?"

"Not under four years."

"How about Queens and Brooklyn, aside from what the new Fourth avenue subway will open?"

"Fourteen months."

Mr. McCall went on to say it was a wonder to him the jam at the Grand Central had not resulted in a terrific accident. He shook his head when he spoke of what may be expected in the next four years, the time that it will take to build the new tunnels and hitch them up with the tubes already under construction.

"It's a matter of the utmost seriousness," he said. "Perhaps we can get some relief somehow."

Mr. McCall referred to a statement which Clarence J. Shearn, lawyer for William R. Hearst, had issued a short time before. Mr. Shearn said that he intended to fight the subway contracts through to the Court of Appeals and that the contracts will be worthless until they have stood the test of litigation.

"Mr. Shearn apparently has the courage of his convictions," Mr. McCall said, "but, thank heaven, I haven't got to take the responsibility for delaying traffic relief. Anybody who does that is taking on himself a very serious responsibility. Apparently Mr. Shearn is willing to do so."

The line in the dual system that will go into commission first is the Fourth avenue subway to Thirty-sixth street, South Brooklyn. This line is finished as far north as Fulton street, and another link between Fulton street and the eastern end of the Manhattan Bridge has been completed. Practically all that remains to be done is the connection at each end of the bridge and the short stretch of difficult construction near Fulton street.

The line will connect with the Centre street loop, which has been finished for several years except for the connection with the basement of the Municipal Building. It will take eight months to make the B. R. T. cars for the line. By December 1, 1913, the line will be in operation, Judge McCall thinks, along with the connection with the B. R. T. line from the eastern end of the Williamsburg Bridge.

The new elevated lines in Queens county from the Queensboro Bridge to Astoria and Corona, contracts for which have been let by the Public Service Commission, will be ready, said Judge McCall, in fourteen months. Commissioner Malbie and William R. Wilcox, predecessor of Mr. McCall as chairman of the commission, thought that eighteen months was a fairer estimate. The lines, as they are built, can be connected with the Interborough's Second avenue elevated line and with the new Interborough elevated between the eastern end of the Steinway tunnel and the Queensboro Bridge Plaza.

The new lines to Coney Island from the southern end of the Fourth avenue Subway in Brooklyn will take about the same time to build as the Queens lines, and these will be ready for passengers a year from next fall. The five cent fare to Coney will go into effect just as soon as the cars begin to run.

Several sections of the subway lines under Broadway and Lexington avenue are more than half finished. These lines will probably be completed before the other subways with which they connect will be ready for passengers.

The usual time allowed by the Public Service Commission for the construction of subways is from thirty-six to forty-two months. Allowing for delays in getting out the plans and awarding contracts, the Seventh avenue line of the Interborough, the Fifty-ninth street line of the B. R. T. and the Brooklyn tunnels for both subways won't be ready much before January 1, 1917.

In the meantime if the Lexington avenue subway is finished, it will have to stand idle, it was said yesterday.

Clarence J. Shearn said that he will start an action to annul the contracts as soon as they are signed. He thinks that the suit can be pushed through to the Court of Appeals before June. It will be in the name of John J. Hoppe, who brought injunction proceedings which held up the adoption of the contracts by three weeks.

Mr. Shearn argues that the city's borrowing capacity is not large enough for the construction of its share in the new subways. He thinks that the debt limit will be overreached $5,000,000 at least. Borough President McAneny and Comptroller Prendergast have met the argument several times and declare that the city has plenty of room for the new work.

Clarence H. Verner, who tried through his lawyer, J. Aspinwall Hodge, to secure an injunction from the United States Circuit Court to prevent the making of the Interborough of its $170,000 mortgage, said yesterday that the subways had busy time yesterday at a meeting of Interborough stockholders. The meeting was for the purpose of authorizing this mortgage. Mr. Verner objected to the proceedings stop by stop and the meeting ran three hours over its time, but the mortgage was authorized just the same.

The bulk of Interborough stock is held by the Windsor Trust Company as security for Interborough-Metropolitan bonds in double the amount. This stock, the voting of which Mr. Verner sought to have the court prevent, was voted yesterday for the mortgage.

SAYS CASTRO PLANS UPRISING.

Hernandez Amers Venezuela Is Likely to Have More Trouble.

Gen. Jose Manuel Hernandez, former Venezuelan Minister to the United States, who recently announced that he will start a revolution in Venezuela if President Gomez is re-elected, said last night at the Hotel Empire, Broadway and Sixty-third street, that former President Castro was undoubtedly making plans to seize the Government.

"At the present time," Gen. Hernandez said through his interpreter, Dr. Nicolson Bole, "Castro cannot get a following. What he may do later nobody can tell, but of course such a thing is possible by working through the officers of the army. At present the army stands behind me and I have the confidence of the people."

"If Gomez attempts to have himself re-elected by getting an amendment to the Constitution, which now forbids a President to succeed himself, or if one of his friends is elected, it is possible there will be an uprising. It is such an opportunity that Castro might look for."

"Would you seize such an opportunity?" the General was asked.

"I might try to start a revolution and I might not," replied Gen. Hernandez. "Everything will depend on circumstances."

Gen. Hernandez said that the Cubans' reception of Castro showed "the antipathy of Cuba toward the United States."

"I do not believe," he continued, "that Castro will receive any aid in Mexico. Neither do I believe any American interest in backing him up."

"There is no possibility that Colombia or Nicaragua will be drawn into the Venezuelan situation. Gomez is disliked in Venezuela, and Castro is hated by a majority of the people."

Gen. Cipriano Castro arrived here from Washington yesterday and went to the Hotel Savoy.

TO HOLD OUTDOOR SUFFRAGE RALLY

Affair To-night Will Be a Protest Against Washington Treatment.

An outdoor rally will be held to-night in Times Square by the Twenty-seventh district members of the Woman's Suffrage party as a protest against the treatment which the suffrage marchers received in Washington on Monday. Decorated automobiles will reach the square at 7:45 o'clock to catch the theatre crowds. The principal speaker will be Miss Margaret Foley, a labor leader of Boston, who with Miss Inez Milholland's house Gray Dawn shares the glory of saving the Washington parade from rout before the cavalry arrived.

"Miss Foley is powerful and was delegated to lead the procession, following Miss Milholland, the herald, with a big banner," said Mrs. James Lee Laidlaw, who was just behind with the national officers. "When the crowds rushed in after the ropes broke and the mounted police gave way, she refused to budge. As for Gray Dawn, he was simply wonderful. He snorted at the crowds and shook his head when any of them touched his bridle, but he never reared. He raised his hoofs so as not to step on any one."

"He gave us something to anchor to while we were waiting for the cavalry, but I shall not soon forget the unprintable remarks that crowd said to us. Most of it was directed at the young women. The older ones were told to go to the old ladies' home. The police were almost as bad. What a relief it was to see the cavalry coming, and the soldiers and marines along the streets finally helped us out of their own accord. The boy scouts did all they could for us too."

"I saw an Ohio woman slapped in the face, and tobacco juice was spit in another woman's eyes. Nearly all of us had to send our suits to the cleaners, they were so covered with tobacco juice."

"It is a relief to get home and know that here we will have adequate protection. We are not only going to speak from automobiles but we are going among the crowds to sell the Woman Voter, the white slave number of which is just out."

MAY 'SHAVE' WALL STREET.

McAneny Offers a Resolution to Remove Encroachments There.

The next turn with Borough President McAneny's "barbers" comes to Wall Street. Mr. McAneny will introduce into the Board of Estimate this morning a resolution calling for the removal of encroachments on the principal streets of the financial district. Steeps, ornamental pillars, arcways, fences and all the other things that jut out upon city property will be taken away if the Board of Estimate adopts Mr. McAneny's resolution.

The streets involved are Wall, between Pearl street and Broadway; Broad street, between Wall and Water; Exchange place, between Broadway and Hanover place; Pine street, between Pearl street and Broadway; Cedar street, from West street to Pearl street, and Beaver street, between Whitehall and Pearl streets.

Mr. McAneny's engineers report that banks and office buildings will be affected by the order. In some places the encroachments take up a large part of the space that belongs to the city for sidewalks. Congestion makes the change necessary.

Public hearings will be held before the order goes into effect.

HACKENACK GETS PAST OFFICE.

HACKENACK, N. J., March 5.—There is joy in Hackensack over the signing of the public buildings appropriation by President Taft yesterday, for it carries with it $200 for a new post office building here.

SULZER'S RETURN MAY MEAN A FIGHT

Expected That Wilson Will Back Governor in His Claim to Be State Leader.

ADJOURNMENT ON APRIL 4.

Senate Is Two Weeks Behind in Legislation and Must Catch Up.

ALBANY, March 4.—Members of the Legislature are speculating to-night on what action Gov. Sulzer will take when he returns to-morrow from his Washington trip. It is the general belief that, fortified by President Wilson, the Governor will speak sharply to the Democratic leaders who so far have blocked his pet measures.

The Governor has made it plain that he feels that he is the State leader. There has been a disposition on the part of the Democratic leaders in the Legislature to resist this. Should Gov. Sulzer fall out with Tammany and Leader Murphy he will be left practically alone, as William R. Hearst has thrown him overboard.

When the legislative session began the Governor sent for Senator Robert F. Wagner, the Democratic leader of the Senate, and Speaker Alfred E. Smith of the Assembly. He told them that he wanted action and an adjournment by April 1. He has got action, but not on measures favored by himself. And the Legislature has been in session over nine weeks.

There are many signs of friction. The efficiency bill proposed by the Governor to bring about improvement in State departments; his bill for a State board of estimate, somewhat on the plan of the Board of Estimate of New York; the single headed highway commission bill—these are a few of the Governor's measures which have been held up.

It became known to-day that Gov. Sulzer has invited several Senators to dinner at the "People's House" to-morrow night, the first of a series of dinners to members of the Legislature. Undoubtedly the Governor will do some mission work for his bills.

With legislative leaders expecting to introduce a resolution next week providing for adjournment of the Legislature sine die on April 4 and practically none of the big measures planned for the season of 1913 passed, the Senate and Assembly face what will probably be the busiest four weeks experienced by legislators in many years.

The appointment of a committee to investigate the police situation in New York City has delayed the work of the Senate by just two weeks. In the meantime the Assembly has been doing business at a rapid pace, and in these last few days has passed several bills, which have been referred to the Senate committees. It is expected that when Senator Wagner returns the Senate will plunge into work and clear up important bills before touching local legislation which has not already been advanced.

"A few good laws" was what Gov. Sulzer asked as the fruits of the 1913 session and if the Senate committees have their way this is what will happen. Small bills, special legislation and measures which interest but few persons will be sidetracked by the majority in order to get speedy action on legislation to carry out platform pledges. As an illustration of this, the Senator John F. Murtagh of Elmira, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said that at the last meeting of that body thirty bills were killed, so that the general orders calendar of the Senate would not become an unintelligible mass of legislation, as it has for some years.

The immense amount of work that must be done before adjournment legislative leaders insist that the session will not extend beyond the first week of April unless something unforeseen happens. Conferences are being held every day to determine just what course will be pursued and a calendar of the important bills, with the days on which they will be passed, will be prepared.

CAPITAL ATTACKS AD- US, SAYS DR. SHAW

She Believes Suffrage Got Biggest Impetus in Ten Years on Monday.

"The treatment we received in Washington on Monday will do more for suffrage than anything that has happened in the last ten years," said Dr. Anna Howard Shaw at the National headquarters yesterday.

The difference in the treatment accorded the enfranchisement women and the enfranchisement men ought to show Congress and the country at large how much women need the vote. The streets were not even cleared for the roughs made it a contest in expectation.

"It was not a demonstration against suffrage but against women, for the women on the sidewalks were as badly treated as we were. The policemen did absolutely nothing to protect us, and when I asked one of them whether that was the best he could do he said he would show us to-morrow what he could do."

"Many of them were intoxicated and the special policemen looked like the drags of the streets. They laughed and jeered with the crowds."

"I saw that Major Sylvester was hissed by the crowds in the grand stands yesterday as he rode by in the procession and if he is not dismissed it will show that Congress doesn't care whether we are treated as human beings or not. Just come with me and I will introduce you to him."

The visitor objected to going, and after Vice-consul Cox had repeated his suggestions several times without success, he tried to get the caller a book on French law written by himself, and for which he asked four francs. The man came back to me and said: 'You've got a fine Consul here, who uses his official position to sell his own books.'

Concerning the official explanation that the Legion of Honor ribbon was bestowed on Mr. Harper for services to Frenchmen in America, THE SUN asked several leaders in the French colony here if they knew what the services were. The head of one of the leading French commercial organizations in New York, said that all he knew about Mr. Harper was that he remembered seeing a large and conspicuous sign over his law office on the Rue de l'Opera.

Capt. Alexander E. Macart, vice-president of the national organization of the Alliance Francaise, who received the ribbon of the Legion of Honor for his services in behalf of the local organization, of which he had been president for some years, said that he had never heard of Mr. Harper until he read in Le Figaro last month that he was one of the persons recently honored.

INSISTS U. S. CONSUL DID FAVOR HARPER

Charles F. Beach Tells of Two Instances He Observed in Paris.

FRENCH HERE PUZZLED

Work That Got Lawyer Legion of Honor Ribbon Unknown to Them.

The Paris despatch to THE SUN yesterday containing the denials of Consul-General Frank H. Mason that the American Consulate has favored Donald Harper, an American lawyer living in Paris, when asked to recommend an attorney, and the explanation that Mr. Harper was honored with the ribbon of the Legion of Honor last month for "services rendered French citizens resident in America," was commented on by a number of persons in New York yesterday.

In spite of the denials of Consul-General Mason that there have been close relations between Harper and the consulate, THE SUN was told yesterday of an incident that occurred several years ago which pointed to the contrary. The statement came from Charles F. Beach, a New York lawyer practicing in Paris, who is now in New York. Mr. Beach said: "A few years ago a friend of mine was sent from New York to Paris to open a branch office for the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, shortly after Col. Mason went to Paris as Consul-General. I believe he called at the consulate to pay his respects, and before he had made any suggestion as to requiring the services of a lawyer he was advised to consult Mr. Harper in case he needed a lawyer. My friend said to me afterward, 'I think it is a damned outrage for the United States Consul to try to steer an institution like the Farmers Loan and Trust Company into Harper's law office.'"

After Secretary of State Knox had entered a new list of American attorneys prepared for use in the Paris Consulate, and had directed the attaches to record the names of the attorneys, Mr. Beach said he decided to find out whether the Consul was obeying these directions. He sent a Frenchman, carrying a lawyer's bag, and posing as a provincial attorney, to the Consulate asking the aid of an attorney in an important case. Mr. Beach said:

"My representative saw the Vice-Consul, Mr. Cox, and as soon as he stated the object of his visit the Vice-Consul took him by the arm and said, 'There is a very good attorney on the floor above. Just come with me and I will introduce you to him.' The visitor objected to going, and after Vice-consul Cox had repeated his suggestions several times without success, he tried to get the caller a book on French law written by himself, and for which he asked four francs. The man came back to me and said: 'You've got a fine Consul here, who uses his official position to sell his own books.'

WILSON NAMES COMMERCE MEN.

Senate Confirms Clark's Nomination
But Delays Marble's.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The first nominations sent by President Wilson to the Senate, after the names of the members of his Cabinet had gone in, were Edgar E. Clark of Iowa and John H. Marble of California for Interstate Commerce Commissioners. Both are Democrats.

Mr. Clark's is a reappointment. His nomination was quickly confirmed.

Before sending the name of Mr. Clark to the Senate President Wilson summoned to the White House Senators Cummins and Kenyon of Iowa and asked them if the appointment was satisfactory to them. Both are progressive Republicans.

Mr. Marble's nomination was referred to a committee and will be confirmed on Friday.

GOFF SAILS FOR PANAMA.

Justice Will Be Done About Five Weeks for Recreation.

Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff, Francis W. Pollock, formerly a law partner of the Justice, and John W. Goff, Jr., sailed yesterday by the United Fruit steamship Zacafo for Panama. Justice Goff will look over the canal and then visit the old Spanish town of Cartagena, in Colombia. He will return to New York in about five weeks.

Mrs. Sader went to the West 135th street police station and told about it. The lieutenant sent her to the Lenox avenue station. Meanwhile Mrs. Goff, who lives at 21 West 135th street, called up Dr. Leo Berliner of 37 West 125th street and after he had dressed Mrs. Donovan's wounds, he told the police where she was.

The husband has not been arrested. Mrs. Donovan's condition is so serious that it was not thought safe to remove her to a hospital.

WOMAN TWICE SHOT; HUSBAND IS SOUGHT

Wounded During Quarrel. She Walks to Friend's Home;
Revolver in Muff.

Mrs. Rae Donovan was shot twice at 228 West 130th street last night, with blood streaming down her face and followed by a crowd the woman walked from that address to 51 West 125th street, where she told Mr. and Mrs. William Goehry, with whom she boards, that her husband had attempted to kill her and collapsed. She has wounds in the face and neck and is in a serious condition.

Donovan is a Standard Oil salesman. He has been married about ten years, but has been separated from his wife for a year and a half, it is said. Since then Mrs. Donovan has supported herself as forewoman of a force of salesgirls in a downtown store.

Last Friday a man who said he was Donovan, with a woman whom he called his wife, rented a furnished suite from Mrs. Henry Sader at 228 West 130th street. On Tuesday, so Mrs. Donovan she said, she went to her husband's home and saw Mrs. Donovan with a revolver in her hand.

"Never mind. I'm all right," Mrs. Donovan told the terrified women, and putting the revolver in her muff walked out of the door.

TO AMEND THE STILLWELL BILL.

Albany Lawmakers Listen to Es-change Members' Protest.

ALBANY, March 5.—A delegation headed by John Asprenger, president of the New York Produce Exchange, protested before the Senate Codes Committee to-day against the passage of the Stillwell bill prohibiting stock and other exchanges from making an agreement to prevent members of an exchange from dealing at regular rates of commission with members of any other exchange.

The committee said that under the bill's provisions merchants in the wheat, corn, provision, beef and pork packing, shipping and export and foreign trade will be forced to deal with undesirable people and be compelled to extend credit without responsibility. The bill will be amended to meet their objections.

The delegation included John Asprenger, S. F. Engle, Jerome Lewis, William E. Cantrell, Harry E. Brining, H. Downes, L. H. Fish, Kenneth J. Mullen, Gordon Arnold, J. P. Grant, W. C. Rossmann, J. G. Todd and O. H. Montgomery.

GEORGE COFFIN DROPS DEAD.

Lawyer Before Dying Wrote Bitter
Note to Relatives.

George C. Coffin, a lawyer of 163 Broadway, formerly well known in Democratic circles in this city, once a candidate for the Assembly and at one time president of the Pontiac Club, died yesterday afternoon of heart disease in a barber shop at 4 Green Avenue, Brooklyn.

Mr. Coffin had not been well for a year and his health had been especially poor during the last week. He went out yesterday despite the protests of his relatives, with whom he lived at 95 St. James place. He was entering the barber shop when a heavily loaded motor truck broke down in front of the place, throwing the driver to the street and causing some excitement. Mr. Coffin fell immediately after entering the barber shop and he was dead when a doctor arrived. He had in his pockets more than $200 and a letter that said: "In case of my sudden death or accident notify W. H. Blain, No. 256 Broadway." Below that request he had written:

"To BLAIN: Cremate my body. If there are any services let not a single one of my family attend them. Not a single soul at No. 95 West Eighty-second street. A curse on them all from me."

GEORGE C. COFFIN,
229 Broadway.

Friends who have been associated with Mr. Coffin for many years said last night that they couldn't account for the bitter tone of the note. He formerly lived at 49 West Eighty-second street. He had been separated from his wife and family for many years. Mr. Coffin lived at the time of his death at the Brooklyn home of two cousins, Alfred M. Coffin and Mrs. C. C. Provost at the St. James place address.

When Mr. Coffin began the practice of law in this city he and William H. Blain formed a partnership which lasted for many years. The note to Mr. Blain was addressed from 229 Broadway, where Mr. Coffin had offices a good many years ago.

Mr. Coffin was 62 years old. He was born in Cape Mills, N. Y., in 1850. He was graduated from Dartmouth College. He studied law at the New York University and was admitted to the bar in 1874. He practiced law in this city ever since, with a few exceptions. He was a member of the New York Bar Association, the New York City Bar Association, the New York County Medical Society, the Police Department, also visited Miss Page, both received treatment for alleged illnesses of a nervous order.

WOMAN DOCTOR ARRESTED.

Miss Villa Faulkner Page Accused by Medical Society.

Miss Villa Faulkner Page, an elderly woman dressed in the new spring fashion, was arrested before Magistrate Kerschan in the Essex Market court yesterday, charged with practicing medicine without a license. The case was put over for examination on Monday afternoon.

Miss Page has an apartment at 31 Gramercy place, where she gives treatments for nervous ailments. She lectures every Sunday evening at the Women's Professional League, Broadway and Sixty-eighth street, on "Psychology, Metaphysics and Mental Therapeutics." She was elected to the vice-presidency of the Medical-Legal Society, but was forced to resign on account of the increasing demands of her professional work. She is a member of the New York County Medical Society, the Daughters of the Empire State and the Cameo Club.

The warrant for her arrest was issued to Mrs. Frances Benavise, a detective in the employ of the New York County Medical Society. Mrs. Goodwin, a first grade detective in the Police Department, also visited Miss Page. Both received treatment for alleged illnesses of a nervous order.
